Will Not Work Again.

The Democratic assault upon the recent tariff act is a vivid reminder of what occurred after the passage of the McKinley tariff law in the second year of the Harrison administration. That law was so persistently and unscrupulously misrepresented that people were led to believe the most of their ills and misfortunes were due to it, says Philadelphia Press.

The country was clearly deceived and one month after the passage of the act it elected an overwhelming Democratic majority to the House of Representatives, and two years later the Democrats secured the Presidency and both houses of Congress. When followed this was natural enough. It was not necessary to wait for a revision of the tariff by its enemies. The very menace of Democratic control in both executive and legislative departments of the National Government was sufficient to halt the industries of the country, depress business, stop investment and throw hundreds of thousands out of employment. It was a condition from which there was no recovery while Democratic administration continued, and which was aggravated by the enactment of a Democratic tariff law.

There was no recovery until upon a reaction the author as the maligned McKinley tariff was himself elected President with the support of a Republican Congress. The Democratic tariff was promptly superseded by the Dingley tariff, embodying the Republican principles of protection, and under that tariff the country prospered for more than a dozen years as it had never prospered before. Since that time the Democrats have not had the Presidency, nor have they had control of either house of Congress. The people, whose confidence has been abused, amazingly increased Republican majorities in Republican States and districts, and made Republican majorities in places where they had been unheard of before.

That lesson cannot have been forgotten, through the enemies of protection appear to believe it has. They are employing now against the new tariff law the same tactics used against the McKinley act. It is assailed with misrepresentation; it is falsely charged with responsibility for the higher prices of articles on which the duty has not been changed and on some of which the duties were reduced. If their assertions are not made ignorantly they are made with a presumption of popular ignorance which cannot be justified.

It is inconceivable, that such obvious misrepresentations can delude the people into again electing a Democratic Congress with its menace to industrial and business activity. One experience of this kind within the memory of the present generation should be, and doubtless is, warning enough.

Butter and Butter Substitutes.

The great majority of people eat butter and much prefer it to any of the substitutes which have been put on the market. However, a great many people must use a substitute on account of the high prices which prevail during certain months of the year.

Olecmargine is the most common substitute for butter and millions of pounds of this product are consumed each year. The difference in cost of production between olemargarine and butter is so great that when butter is retailed at forty cents a pound, olemargarine may be retailed at twenty cents at as great a profit to the dealer.

The person who chooses to purchase the substitute should be allowed to do so and he should be required to pay only the price of the substitute. The difference in price between the genuine product and the substitute is so great that the dealers are tempted to sell the latter for the former. Only by requiring that the consumers may differentiate between the two articles can honest traffic in the substitute be insured.

This was contemplated by Congress when the present internal revenue tax of ten cents a pound was levied upon "artificially colored olemargarine." Many people think that all olemargarine is taxed ten cents a pound. This is not a fact. Olemargarine which is "artificially colored" so that the consumer cannot distinguish it from butter is the only olemargarine that is thus taxed. When it is put upon the market in its natural color it is only taxed one-fourth of one cent per pound.

It is only when the product is made to look like butter so that it may be fraudendently sold as butter that a burdensome tax is imposed upon it. The imposition of the tax is not to suppress the sale of olemargarine or to make it more expensive to the consumer, but to prevent fraud in its sale.

Won Diamond Ring.

Miss Mary Blumle, who is one of the contestants in the Bermuda Island contest being held by the Williamsport News, received word by telephone last Saturday, that she had won the $75 00 diamond ring which the company had offered for the largest number of votes received during the last week. Yesterday, a representative of the News visited Emporium and presented Miss Blumle with the ring in behalf of the News. Miss Blumle ranks first in the contest and here's hoping that she will continue to carry off first honors.

Base Ball.

Last Monday morning the Keystone National Base Ball team went to Olean, N. Y., to play ball with that team. Two games were scheduled for the day. The morning game resulted in a victory for the Keystone Nationals, the score being 3 to 2. On account of wet weather the afternoon game was called off. It has been reported that Mr. Clyde Fisher of this place, was the star player in the morning game.

Wild People That Live on Milk and Blood.

In the South country of Africa there is a naked race of savages that lives solely on blood and milk mixed. J. Alden Loring, one of the naturalists who accompanied the ex-president, describes these people and their habits in his illustrated lecture "Through Africa with Roosevelt." Emporium Opera House, Saturday evening, Sept. 10.

Friday Evening Service.

Friday Evening Service at Emmanuel Church The boys and girls of Emmanuel Church between the ages of 8 and 13 are requested to come to the church, Friday at 6:45 to be fitted with vestments and to be given a place in the Junior Choir. The Friday evening service will consist of the Litany. and a short address by the Rector. The members and friends are cordially invited to attend the Friday evening service.

Auto Trip.

Dr. W. H. Bush accompanied by Mr. C. Harold Seger left for Cincinatti, Ohio last Sunday. They made the trip in the doctor's auto and went by the way of Corry and Cleveland. The trip will cover a period of about ten days. We hope the genial gentlemen will have a royal good time.

Meals at the Fair.

Ladies of the Methodist Church are preparing to serve the meals, and other refreshments at the Fair. They will be able to meet all demands in this direction, including hot dinners.

Enjoyable Dance.

Last Friday evening the "Younger Set" with several invited guests had a most enjoyable dance at the Opera House. The hall was tastefully decorated for the occasion, with potted plants and goldenrod. Cozy corners were everywhere in evidence and the committee in charge did all in their power to make the dance a social success. Miss Dorothy Nelson presided at the piano and about thirty couple tripped the light fantastic until the 'Wee sma' hours" and were even then reluctant to depart for their homes. Mrs. J. A. Fisher assisted by several other ladies acted as the patroneses of the evening. The "Younger Set" certainly know how to entertain and the pleasant time will live long in the memories of those who had the pleasure of attending.

The Fair.

The arrangements for the Cameron County Fair are rapidly being completed and within the next few days everything will be in shape for the opening next Tuesday, Sept. 13th and continue for four days. One of the attractions booked is "The Little California Gem, Midget Lady Bag Puncher." With the smallest and most elaborate stage setting ever displayed. There are several other attractions that are wanting contracts but have not yet completed arrangements. The free attraction has not been decided upon yet but everything will be ready for the opening day. As usual the children will have the merry-go-round to amuse themselves. It is urgently requested of any who have anything of interest, no matter how small it may seem, bring it. We wish to make the exhibit a success and in order to do so will have to have the citizens of the county co-operate with the management. An admission fee of 10c will be charged each day or a season ticket for the four days can be had for 25c. Tickets are now on sale at H. S. Lloyd's book store.

Union Friendly Society.

The Union Friendly Society held its regular meeting at the home of the president last Tuesday evening. Officers for the coming year were nominated. It was decided to hold a picnic at Keystone Park on Tuesday, September 20th, supper to be served at six o'clock. On the first anniversary of the society a big time is to be planned and several guests are to be invited for the occasion. Committees were appointed to make all arrangements. The affair will probably take place on the evening of October 11th, and will be held at the Parish house of Emmanuel Episcopal Church.

Argument Court.

Argument Court was held in Emporium on Monday, September 5th. Hon, Harry A. Hall President Judge with the Hons. Geo. J. LaBar and John A. Wykoff presiding. In the case of Frank White held for burglary, he plead guilty to the charge and received a sentence for a term of not less than seven and one-half years and not more than 30 years. White had been convicted 24 times previously to this offence. In the case of Edson Maybee also charged with burglary in two instances and who also plead guilty to the charge was given a sentence of not less than two and one-half years and not more ten years for the first offense and the second term, which is to follow immediately after the end of the first term, is not less than two and one half years and not more than ten years. Sheriff J. W. Norris accompanied by Mr. Charles Cummings accompanied the prisoners to the Western penitentiary on Tuesday morning.

Ullrich—McKay.

On Wednesday morning at six o'clock, in St. Mark's Roman Catholic Church, occurred the marriage of Miss Winifred E. Ullrich and Mr. Joseph A. McKay. The Rev. Father. T. B. Downey, rector of the church officiated. The attendants of the bride and groom were Miss Christy MacDonald and Mr. Herbert Vogt. Mr. and Mrs. McKay are spending their honey-moon taking in the sights at Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Toronto. The PRESS extends congratulations.

CUSH.

WILLIAM EDWARD CUSH, died at the family home at Gardeau last Monday morning about 10:30 o'clock, from the effects of a stroke of paralysis received last Friday morning. Deceased was born in Ireland 82 years ago and came to American when he was a young man. He settled in Virginia where he was married 52 years ago, in Norfolk. Shortly after the birth of the eldest son Frank, the family removed to Emporium, this being about fifty years ago and since that this much respected family have been residents of Emporium and vicinity. Mr. Cush was employed on the Pennsylvania railroad and it was the construction of the division from Renovo to Emporium that brought him to this part of the state. Eight children were born to this union, four of whom, with the aged wife, survive the husband and father. Mrs. Cush is prostrated with her great grief, this being the second time within two weeks she has been called upon to part with her loved ones, a daughter, the late Mrs. Chas. J. Howard, having died just two weeks ago. The surviving children are Mrs. Sprung, of Denver, Colo., Edward, of Pittsburg, Pa., Mrs. W. B. Thompson, of this place and Norman at home. Deceased was well liked by all as he was always an upright gentleman in all his dealings and his word was as good as his note. He was thoroughly dependable in every thing. The remains of this venerable gentlman were removed from his late home to the residence of his daughter, Mrs. W. B. Thompson, North Maple street, from which place the funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock. The Rev. R. H. Bent, pastor of the Presbyterian Church officiated and interment was made in the Newton-Wiley Cemetery beside the remains of his daughter Mrs. Knight, who died several years ago. The funeral services were very largely attended, showing the high mark of esteem in which deceased was held. This sorely afflicted family have the sincere sympathy of the entire community, having passed through these two sad scenes so recently. On by one the old land marks of Emporium and vicinity are passing away, and the dear ones left to mourn their demise can be comforted that they have fought the good fight and have gained their reward and now rest from their labors.

Wild Elephants Disturbed His Slumbers.

Who could sleep in an elephant and rhinoceros trail when a herd of elephants was charging about, trumpeting and bellowing? In his illustrated lecture, "Through Africa with Roosevelt." J. Beautiful Flowers.

Mrs. Henry Lyons, of Bryon Hill, presented the PRESS office with a most beautiful potted purple astor, last Saturday afternoon. The plant contains dozens of the beautiful flowers, and has been greatly admired. Mrs. Lyons takes great pride in her flowers and certainly her efforts are crowned with success as her flower beds are well known for their beauty. We are certainly thankful to Mrs. Lyons for her generous gift.

Handsome Show Windows.

The large show wiudows in Mr. R. Kuehn's Up-to-Date Dry Goods Store on Fourt street have just been newly decorated, making them equal to the best as you see them in New York or Philadelphia. The floor has been covered with rich green Velvet Carpet and the back ground is hung with exquisite Dark Green Silk Velour. The new Fall Merchandise displayed show off beautifully in these splendid settings. Mr. Kuehne has also added new fixtures and Counter Cabinets in his Notion Department making shopping among little things easy and a pleasure. Emporium may well be proud of its wide-a-awake Dry Goods Store.

Garvin—Swanson.

This (Thursday) morning, at 9:30 o'clock, at Youngtown, Ohio, occurred the marriage of Miss Marie Garvin and Mr. Albert Swanson, both formerly of Emporium. The happy couple are expected to arrive in Emporium this evening and will be entertained as guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Mead Floyd, Sixth street. The contracting parties are both well and favorably known in this place and their many friends will be pleased to learn that a friendship of so many years has terminated so happily. The PRESS joins with the friends in extending congratulations.

Music Lessons Resumed.

Former scholars in music, desiring to again renew lessons can do so by calling at my residence or notifying me and I will call at your homes to arrange dates for lessons. Any new pupils wishing to receive instructions, I will be pleased to call and make the necessary arrangements.

Rail Road News.

The increasing demand for greater safety and facility in railroad operation has caused the Pennsylvania Railroad to institute a new plan of training men to maintain and operate its signals. Accordingly, there have just been appointed four Signal apprentices; Jacob Bright, graduate of Lehigh 1910. L. J. Phillips, graduate of Sheffield Scientific School, Yale 1910, A. W. Fisher, 1910 graduate of Pennsylvania State College, and A. H. Tasker, graduate of Yale, 1910, Sheffield Scientific School.

The different divisions of the Lines East of Pittsburg have started signal schools where experienced signalmen give instruction to the division signal employees in regard to the proper operation and maintenance of the different signal and interlocking appliances.

The importance of this step is indicated by the fact that, whereas, in 1902 there were but 7,891 interlocking functions in operation on the Lines East of Pittsburg, in 1908 this number was 20,725—having just about tripled in a period of six years. These 20,835 functions are operated by 8,792 levers. A total of 12,408 signals are in service, covering 3.385 miles of road, or over 70 per cent of mileage.

Signal apprentices will serve a three years course. The first year will be spent on the mechanical end of the work with the repair gangs, the second year in the office of the Supervisor of Signals, and the third year on outside work on electric and electropneumatic appliances. They will report to the Supervisor of Signals while taking this course.

The next place open to these men in the position of Assistant Signal Inspector in the Signal Engineer's Office. After attaining this they will be considered in line of appointment to the following positions: Assistant Supervisor of Signals, Supervisor of Signals, Inspector, Assistant Signal Engineer, and Signal Engineer.

FACTS FOR FARMER

SOME PLAIN TRUTHS WELL TO REMEMBER.

A Glance at the Exchange Value of His Products Should Determine Him How to Cast His Vote This Fall.

While the prices of practically all commodities have shown some advance during the last few years, the products of the farm show a much greater advance than do the products of mines and factories. The financial condition of the grain raiser, the general farmer and the dairyman is better than ever before and never was the purchasing power of farm products so great.

Senator Reed Smoot, in a speech before the United States senate, May 27, 1910, declared farm land itself had advanced in value rapidly and everything produced on the farm had risen materially. Financially, the farmer has become independent. The rural free delivery and the telephone have placed him in touch with the world and he is as familiar with current events as is the city dweller.

The average prices of the principal farm products in March, 1910, and March, 1896, as shown by the bulletins of the United States bureau of labor, reveal in a striking manner the prosperity of the farmer.

The real value of any article is its exchange value. The real worth of farm products is measured by comparison with the value of articles which the farmer wants to purchase.

Figuring on the general wholesale price of articles, ten bushels of corn in 1896 would buy 21 pounds of Rio coffee, in 1910, 70 pounds; ten bushels of corn equaled in value 53 gallons of refined petroleum in March, 1910, 23 gallons in March, 1896; ten bushels of corn equaled in value 1,040 brick in March, 1910, and 519 in March, 1896; ten bushels of corn equaled in value 337 pounds of wire nails in March, 1910, and 95 pounds in March, 1896; ten bushels of corn equaled in value 131 pounds of sugar in March, 1910, and 59 pounds in March, 1896, etc.

A 300-pound hog, when valued in merchandise at the wholesale rate, equaled 36 barrels of salt in March, 1910, and 16 barrels in March, 1896. Twenty pounds of butter showed values as follows, when measured in the wholesale price of staple articles: Coffee, No. 7 Rio, in March, 1910, 70 pounds, in March, 1896, 29 pounds; granulated sugar, 130 pounds in March, 1910, as compared with 82 pounds in 1896, etc. A case of eggs which would have bought 72 yards of Amoskeag gingham in March, 1896, would have bought 110 yards of the same material in March of this year.

These comparisons might be continued indefinitely, the same state of affairs existing in every line of goods which the farmer buys, whether to eat or to wear, whether to house himself and his stock or to operate his farm—in every case the rise in the value of the products of his farm has been greater than the rise in the value of the products he desires to buy.

Agriculture is the foundation of our national wealth. Farmers constitute our greatest class. When the farmer prospers everyone else must necessarily prosper, and the whole country goes ahead.

Does the farmer, in the light of these comparisons, desire to turn back the hands on the clock dial? Does he prefer Cleveland penury to Taft prosperity? Let him answer at the polls this fall.

Silk Dresses Are Cheaper.

Statistics secured by the government at Washington show that the women of the United States are wearing more than ever American made silk in preference to that from the looms of France and other foreign countries.

The value of the silk sold in the states last year is estimated at $165,000,000, of which sum $132,000,000 were paid for American silks, the bulk of which, no doubt, were produced in New Jersey. The silk industry has been built up under a protective tariff; the price of a silk dress has been reduced in consequence, so that the multitude of women instead of the few can purchase and wear it if they choose.—Camden (N. J.) Courier.

Tariff and Cost of Living.

It is probable that the habit of abusing the new tariff will go out of fashion. That it is responsible for the higher cost of living is a contention that will not live through the summer. Foss of Massachusetts made the most of it while he could. That the tariff is not responsible is now established by two independent lines of proof. The first is that prices have gone up the most on articles of agricultural production of which an exportable surplus is produced. The second is that the new tariff is lower than the old one, and hence could have no influence toward raising prices under any imaginable theory.—New York Globe.

Work for Party Success.

There are 850,000 Republican voters in the state of New York, however, and among them somebody is likely to be nominated who will continue the succession of Republican victories. The president and his party friends are planning for Republican victory in the important states as well as in the congressional campaign, and there is a fair prospect that in each field they will succeed.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat

STATISTICS SHOW THE TRUTH

Complete Repudiation of Democratic Claims as to Tariff Revision.

The completed statistics of imports for the past fiscal year reaffirm what has been already shown of the actual operation of the revised tariff. The great increase in importations is to be attributed to the general revival of business activity, rather than to the effect of the tariff, though it is evident that at least this did not retard the revival. It was most directly operative in the increased proportion of goods imported free of duty, which formed a larger percentage of the whole than in any previous like period, except when raw sugar was admitted duty free.

The aggregate duties collected upon all imports under the revised tariff would average 20.95 per cent. ad valorem. Under the McKinley law this average was 25.48 per cent.; under the Wilson law, 21.92 per cent., and under the Dingley law, 22.12 per cent. Thus it appears that the actual taxation imposed by the present tariff is less than under the Democratic tariff, which was denounced by Republicans as favoring "free trade."

Upon all dutiable imports—excluding those admitted free—the average rate of duty is shown to be 41.19 per cent. ad valorem under the revised tariff, against 47.10 under the McKinley tariff, 42.82 under the Wilson and 45.76 under the Dingley law. Here again there appears a very distinct reduction of the average duties below that of any previous tariff.

Whatever attacks may be made against individual schedules of the Payne-Aldrich tariff, the contention that the duties were revised "upward" and not "downward" cannot be maintained in the face of these figures. Meanwhile the tariff has been bringing in such excellent results in increased revenues that there will be less and less disposition to disturb it. —Philadelphia Ledger.

Another Bryan Nostrum.

Mr. Bryan's pronouncement against ship subsidies, coupled with an alternative, is a charming illustration of the irresistible disposition of the man to jump at a new idea, or sometimes an old and exploded one, as the solution of any given question. Instead of subsidizing ships he would have the government own merchant transports for use in time of war and for lease "to help trade" in time of peace. "They could be leased to carriers on conditions which would enable the government to train seamen, . . . and the policy could be stopped any time if found unprofitable.

That would produce the salutary result of stopping the policy before the government put its money into any transport ships. Running ordinary merchant ships so as to make them pay is a science not taught or produced by any civil service school. If the profit is secured it is usually by keeping the seamen under conditions, both of wages and living that American youth would reject. The high price of living has not yet brought our population down to the standard of a few dollars a month and maggoty pork as a steady diet.

The policy which Mr. Bryan so lightly advocates is a tolerably short cut to a subsidy. A very few years of running tramp steamers for profit would make any administration glad to offer anyone a subsidy who would take the ships off its hands.

Lying About the Holy Word.

Every Republican ought to chew up a morsel of righteous indignation and spit it in the face of the erring Democrats who are trying to belie the party for its vote on the Bible question. The lie that caused Democratic Ananias to turn up his feet was but an atom compared with the lie going the rounds that the Republican party raised the price on Bibles. Hides are free of any tariff whatever, but there is a clause that makes leather bound books imported to this country pay an ad valorem duty. This only affects the high-priced morocco covered Bibles printed in this country or bound in this country and distributed throughout the land. Its a pretty low resort of the Democrats to lie on the Holy Word to gain voters.—Clintwood (Va.) Journal.

Might Make a Difference.

The Democratic candidate for governor of Pennsylvania, Mr. Grim, made this remarkable statement in his speech the other day accepting the nomination: "The election of a state ticket in Pennsylvania is complicated by no national or local issue, and should I be elected I am bound to consider that this expression of the people will have no bearing upon national affairs." Yet Democratic leaders are everywhere saying cheerfully that it is "a Democratic year." If Mr. Grim should win, would he and they then proclaim that the victory had no national significance?

People See the Truth.

As regards the matter of high prices, it is believed that the highest point has been reached, for in many lines of goods prices have already been materially reduced, and it is believed that further reduction will take place throughout the summer and fall. But the people have at last learned one thing—that is, that the high prices in foods particularly were not brought about because of the tariff—in fact, the tariff law is no longer blamed for any of the high prices which the people had to meet during the early part of the year.

NEWS FROM the CAPITAL

Tattoo Suggested for Army Horses

WASHINGTON.—Army horses are to become tattooed animals if a suggestion made by Capt. Casper H. Conrad, Jr., of the cavalry arm, is adopted. Captain Conrad is detailed for duty in the quartermaster's department, and is recognized as an expert on horses required for military use. Horses are now being purchased by members of the quartermaster's department, who are making their selections in various parts of the country.

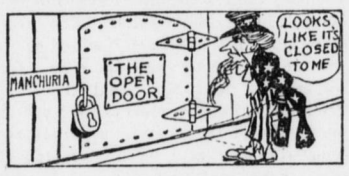
The success attending this effort has been very gratifying to the quartermaster general, who has established an army remount system, with a view to improving the cavalry mounts and the horses furnished to the field artillery. When a young horse is purchased in any locality to be sent to one of the two army remount depots—at Fort Keogh, Montana, or Fort Reno, Okla.—he is marked with a numeral. The mark lasts about four months, when it becomes obliterated, and it is necessary to apply another.

A third marking takes place when the horse is sent from the army remount depot to the troop or battery, and it must be renewed from time to time.

It is Captain Conrad's idea that a more enduring designation could be accomplished by applying a mark to the inside of the upper lip of the horse. He has devised an instrument for this purpose, and suggests the use of India ink, with the result that the numeral adopted will be indelible. This will require, of course, a regular system of marking so that there may be no duplicates. By this means a horse accepted for military service will keep its number. It may be necessary to have legislation to prevent tampering with the designation or making use of a similar mark in the case of horses not used in the military service.

Captain Conrad's quest is expected to lead to several important acquisitions during the coming year. By this method the middleman is avoided, and horses are obtained at a much lower price than under the contract system. Besides, there is a better opportunity of selection, and controversies are avoided which so often have prevailed between the government representatives and the contractors who fail to comply with specifications in the delivery of military animals.

Uncle Sam Is to Test the Open Door



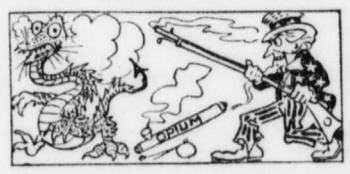
THE United States is to test the sincerity of Russia and Japan in their recent claim of adherence to the open door policy in China made recently coincident with the signing of the new treaty by the Czar and the Mikado. It has been announced at the state department that the government will press at once for recognition from these two powers of the railroad concession recently granted by China to an English-American syndicate.

This is the concession which Russia blocked with an emphatic protest last winter. Since then the negotiations have been in the statu quo. Now they are to be resumed at once. The government is to find out whether or not Russia and Japan intend to bar the United States as well as other powers out of Manchuria by raising unjustifiable objections to the admission of other nations to that rich field.

When the recent convention between Russia and Japan was sprung on the world American diplomats expressed little surprise. The government has believed from the first there is a secret article in this convention which has not been made public. It is felt the unpublished portion is an agreement on the part of the two nations to support each other in barring other nations from the territory in question. The United States intends to force Russia's hand and determine whether such a secret bargain exists. The concession granted to the English-American syndicate was for the construction of the Chin-Chow-Aigun railroad line. English capitalists were to furnish the funds and the materials were to be built in America.

There is one drawback to the situation from the standpoint of this government. England for some unknown reason, is weakening. Her enthusiasm for the joint undertaking cooled perceptibly after Russia had entered an objection. Diplomats seem to think it quite likely that the United States will have to make the fight single-handed to keep Manchuria open with equal opportunity to all nations.

Will Lead in War on the Opium Evil



THE United States will lead the nations in the fight against promiscuous opium traffic at a conference to be held at The Hague in September, according to statements of authorities in Washington. The conference was made possible through diplomatic correspondence with the interested powers by Secretary Knox. The nations represented will be the United States, Great Britain, Germany, France, Italy, Austria-Hungary, Portugal, China, Siam, Persia, Japan, the Netherlands, Russia and probably Turkey.

The work of the conference will follow along lines suggested by the Internation Opium commission, which met last year at Shanghai, on the invitation of this country. The fight against the promiscuous use of the drug and other narcotics which figure in international trade will be made by means of international agreements through which opium producing countries will protect, by means of government supervision, ports where the importation of the drug is prohibited.

The first realization of the seriousness of the opium traffic so far as the United States is concerned came when the government started to put the Philippines in order. An attempt to regulate the unlimited traffic there called for the appointment of a commission. The commission in tracing the many Americans engaged in the opium trade found that the United States, with some 200,000 Americans users of smoking opium, to say nothing of the Chinese users here, presented almost as serious a question as the insular possessions. Since that time the United States has led the fight among the powers against the drug.

About a year ago a law absolutely prohibiting the importation into this country of opium for any except medicinal purposes was passed. But there are now about 150,000 Americans using the drug, and in spite of the prohibitory statute about 68,000 pounds of smoking opium is smuggled into this country annually.

Capital a Suffragette Stronghold

THE increased attention which the suffrage cause is attracting in Washington has astonished the old-timers whose remembrance of the small body of women who called upon the Committee on Privileges and Elections at the convening of every new congress is the last impression of a few plucky women leading a desperately forlorn hope.

Time was when the woman who had suffrage leanings was afraid to avow them in Washington, and when it was thought exceedingly courageous of such well known society leaders as Mrs. John B. Henderson and Mrs. John R. McLean to entertain Miss Susan B. Anthony, the most famous apostle of the cause of woman's rights. Belief in the right of women to the ballot was supposed to imply that the believer wore short hair, impossible frocks, a man's hat and other cranky accompaniments of "queer views."

Time has changed all that. The women who compose the committees which have appeared to demand the vote at the last few sessions of congress have been modishly gowned, attractive and in most instances socially prominent. The cause of the ballot for woman has swept the country to such an extent that many of the senators and representatives of the present congress are avowed sympathizers and not a few of them have put themselves on record as favoring suffrage. The "votes for women" agitation is now discussed openly and sympathetically at many a Washington tea table presided over by a hostess whose social prominence is undisputed and whose graces and talents are distinctly of the most feminine kind.

It is not safe to scoff at woman suffrage anywhere in Washington now, for too many members of the set which is really influential have developed leanings of that kind.

The WORLD'S CONCERT HALL

ONE of the sweetest, most elevating and consoling gifts of heaven to man is music. Who has not rejoiced at the singing of fresh children's voices! With music the young man woos the maiden of his choice. With song the bride or young wife expresses her longing for the absent one. Our meetings in the house of God are accompanied by devotional songs. Sad and somber music ascends in the house of mourning, and yet, what a relief this music is to sorrowing hearts! With the sound of drum and trumpet and the clang of the cymbal the soldier plunges into the smoke and carnage of battle, and even the trained horses dance and curvet in time with the music and strain at the reins which restrain them and learn the meaning of the different bugle calls. Love, anger, sorrow, enthusiasm, pain—all the passions and emotions of the human soul can be, and are, expressed in music

The progress which has been made in the composition of music and in the building of musical instruments of every kind is enormous. The primitive instruments of the ancients and their monotonous music, or the instruments of barbarous or semi-civilized people and the intolerable noise which they call music cannot be compared with the expressive harmony of our music or with the multitude of beauful and powerful musical instruments and in the execution of musical pieces our age has doubtless advanced further than any preceding time. In composition, however, in the art of producing musical pieces, the past century undoubtedly had greater masters than the present.

At the opening of the nineteenth century the musical leadership, which Italy had enjoyed for a considerable period, had passed to Germany, and in the twentieth century it appears as if Germany would also lose this exalted position in its turn, for in the field of art no nation can long hold the leadership. Perhaps the industrial and commercial development of Germany may be one of the causes why the number of its great composers is decreasing; for though prosperity is no obstacle to the enjoyment and cultivation of art, yet it does not seem to form a specially favorable soil for the growing masters of this noble art.

When the nineteenth century dawned Bach, Haendel and Mozart had raised German music to a pinnacle of glory, and Beethoven and fection as today. Chamber music has Haydn were at the zenith of their splendid powers, while Liszt, Weber, Kreutzer and Schubert had begun their immortal careers. Before Beethoven died, Mendelssohn, Schumann and Wagner had been born. This was therefore a golden age of music with an unexampled array of peerless masters and unequalled musical works. Comparing the present age with that glorious time, we are compelled to admit that today there are no giants in musical composition, for the three greatest composers of the present, Edvard Grieg, Anton Dvorak and Richard Strauss, only the last named a German, do not reach up to the standard of the heroic age.

But though there are today no German composers of commanding genius, yet there has never been a time when their works were so highly esteemed and produced with such perreached the highest stage of development in Germany.

In England also musical education has reached a high degree of perfection, but England never produced many composers and none of commanding genius. Richard Elgar has, however, suceeded in meeting with so much approval that he is being reckoned among the great composers. The majority of British and Irish composers, however, are content to follow in the footsteps of German masters; the later ones, though following their own ideals, love to walk abroad in the mantle of Wagner or Brahms.

France has for three centuries occupied a prominent place on the musical stage and her great masters, Boieldieu, Auber, Herold, Adam and Chopin offer much that is interesting and valuable. Yet it must be admitted that here the tendency was mainly to write for the opera and for the production of light and frivolous music. Of a more serious and nobler character are the modern musical dramatists Berlioz, Gounod and Massenet, and it is with pleasure that the lover of music in its higher forms notes the development of a school under the leadership of Caesar Frank which gives special study to the nobler forms of symphony and to chamber music, and the dep and earnest compositions of Camille, Saint-Saens, who has followed German models, are becoming more popular. Saint-Saens, though 71 years old, lately traveled in this country.

But if France has in modern times furnished few important contributions to musical literature, Italy has done still less, though this country produced an unbroken line of great composers from Monteverde in the sixteenth century to Verdi in the nineteenth. Of the newer Italian composers, who for the most part wrote only superficial, extravagant and sensual works, only Pietro Mascagni achieved a genuine success with his beautiful and fiery "Cavalleria Rusticana." Puccini also, the composer of "Tosca" and "La Boheme," has gained the respect of the music-loving public.

The newest field of musical composition and virtuosity has been opened by Scandinavian and Slavic composers and virtuosi. This field is, like the new Siberian and Manchurian wheat fields, producing immense results. Both the Scandinavians and the Slavs have, greatly to their own advantage, made the folk-song the starting point of their compositions, a full, bubbling, exhaustless spring

Of the Slav peoples two nationalities have of late done great things in music; the Russians and the Bohemians. Both have only in the nineteenth century begun to make a reputation for themselves. Since Glinka in 1840 produced musical treasures from the Russian folk-song, musical taste has developed in Russia and is now bearing abundant fruit.

But today even Rusisa recognizes, as does the whole world, that the great German masters will remain models for all time to all nations.

In Bohemia the greatest representative of the musical art—and perhaps also the greatest of the later composers—is Anton Dvorak. In his music the national element is even more prominent than in that of the Russians, but the tragic melancholy which is so often so noticeable in Russian music is here replaced by lively, fiery melodies. The Bohemians have specially produced great violin and piano players. Who does not know the pianist Paderewski and the violinist Kubelik? What triumphs they and other artists among their countrymen reaped in America! So that today when an artist appears with a Bohemian name, this is almost in itself a sufficient introduction and then it is wonderful to see, how even Americans can spell and even pronounce the most wonderful names.

The other European countries, Holland, Belgium, Spain, Portugal and Greece have fallen far in the rear in matters musical. Switzerland has produced several composers of merit who produced especially some fine "Alpenlieder" following German models.

America has not yet produced a composer of the first rank, and yet American music is more and more making a way for itself. A good deal of this music, it is true, is still composed of "Coon Songs" and "Rag Time" pieces, and very often an insult to an educated musical ear. But good music is also coming to the front. Ten years ago it was not considered possible in Europe that a musical composer could be born in America. American inventive genius, American machinery, American farming methods, American commerce and trade—those were undeniable facts of respectable proportions, but American music? The day of really great and distinctively American musical composition is still in the future. American composers have attempted symphony and oratorio, but their works rest on dusty shelves. As a matter of fact only one American firm has undertaken to publish these works.

The rendering of musical compositions, however, in America also, is on a very high plane. In instrumental music musicians of the Teutonic and Slavic races predominate, though there is no lack of American performers also. Instrumental music has reached such a high degree of perfection that the beginner, striving to reach the pinnacle of fame, finds almost insuperable difficulties. Thus far American performers seem to be most successful in vocal music. The time when Italian singers monopolized the field is past. German and American singers, male and female have of late gained great repute in this field. Orchestral music likewise has reached a high degree of perfection and is liberally patronized by all classes of the people, and as might be expected under the circumstances, the building of musical instruments of all kinds has here reached a stage of perfection exceeded nowhere else. But in the field of musical composition, especially in popular song, thre is still a wide and virgin field awaiting cultivation and development.

What we Americans need and wherein we differ from continental European nations to our disadvantage is the social, school and congregational cultivation of music. At social gatherings of young Americans you seldom hear good part singing in which all, or the majority, join. Bringing a serenade with really good singing is a rare thing. Not so in Europe. There one can, of an evening, often hear good quartet singing and will be surprised to learn that the singers are workingmen. Our public schools and academies also have not fostered vocal music as they should have done, though it seems that in this particular things are changing for the better. When music shall be appreciated and understood in the home, school and church, then may we hope to see composers and great artists in our midst, and when we have them they will be valued.

WHO'S WHO AND WHY

LONELIEST ENGLISH DUCHESS

The loneliest and loveliest duchess in all England is our own Consuela Vanaderbilt. Daughter of William K. Vanderbilt, she was only eighteen years old when in 1895 she married the Duke of Marlborough. Her splendid fortune was used in part to pay the debts of the young duke and to rehabilitate his mansions and estates and for a time the union was a happy one. King Edward was much impressed by the charm of the American girl and her position in British society was assured. But the duke failed to appreciate the kindness of fortune in giving him so sweet and accomplished a wife and placing so many millions at his disposal. He neglected the duchess and the couple became estranged, though no divorce followed. English society, backed by King Edward, gladly would have shown its sympathy with the beautiful American and she might have queened it in the most exclusive circles, but, while making no complaint, her grace has preferred a life of semi-seclusion, devoting herself largely to philanthropy.

Tall, graceful, with a refined beauty which would be noticeable in any gathering and with limitless wealth at her command—with all her natural and worldly endowments the duchess of Marlborough never gives the outside world the appearance of happiness. It may be part of her petite beauty that some faintly traceable expression of sadness should cling to her face; it may be that her face is but the index to her heart.

Whichever the case, her grace never suggests to those who see her from time to time that she is happy. She is rarely known to smile. Wearing her $50,000 chinchilla cloak, she has sat through a Platonic lecture unmoved by the playful fancies of a favorite society lecturer; standing at the top of the giant stairs of Sunderland house, she has, in a Paquin gown of silk, received the guests of a charitable gathering—smilingly, it is true, but not in the happy way.

The loneliest duchess in London one might call her—lonely, with all her friends, lonely in that great house of hers, with its fine pictures and tapestries and wonderfully carved ceilings and innumerable powdered flunkies, lonely with all her diamonds and ropes of pearls and sables and chinchillas.

HEADS MICHIGAN UNIVERSITY

President Harry Burns Hutchins of the University of Michigan, is sixty-four years of age. He was born in Lisbon, N. H., and prepared himself for college at the Conference seminary at Tilton and at the Vermont Conference seminary at Newbury.

He entered Wesleyan university at Middleton at the age of nineteen, but on account of poor health was unable to complete the year. Later, however, he took up the studies of physiology and surgery at Vermont university. In 1867 his parents having moved to Michigan, he entered Ann Arbor. Here he kept at the head of his class, was its valedictorian and commencement orator, and in 1871 graduated with honors and with the degree of bachelor of philosophy. After his graduation he went to Owosso and was placed in charge of the public schools there. The next year Professor Hutchins returned to the state university at Ann Arbor and was made instructor in rhetoric and history, being advanced to the position of assistant professor the following year. He continued in this capacity for over three years, when he entered the legal profession, and in partnership with his father-in-law was in active practise for several years, when he again became connected with the university as professor of law. He afterward went to Ithaca and organized a department of law in Cornell. Michigan got him back again in 1875, he was made dean of the department in which he had previously been instructor, and during the years when President Angell was absent as minister to Turkey he was the acting president of the university.

For a dozen years he has been dean of the law department and has made a record as an advocate of more dignity in undergraduate life, keeping the scholastitc requirements in the department always at the highest standards. The regents of the university feel that in President Hutchins they have a man who combines both a high degree of scholarship and a genius for administration, qualities very necessary in this important position.

PEARSONS WOULD DIE POOR

D. K. Pearsons, the Chicago philanthropist, who has given six million dollars to small colleges, expects to give away the rest of his money this year and to retire into a sanitarium to await the end of a very long life. Dr. Pearsons is over ninety years old and afflicted with rheumatism. He will sell his home and spend the balance of his days in the sanitarium. He praises his own wisdom in disposing of his wealth before his death, and says he knows where it has gone and has prevented any contest after he is gone.

April 14, his next birthday anniversary, Dr. Pearsons plans to make his last bequests to his colleges, which will be the last of his fortune. He will then rest content waiting for the end.

"A man is his own best executor," said Dr. Pearsons, "and I intend to be mine. I will sell my home and use the money to pay my debts." Dr. Pearsons always speaks of his conditional pledges as his "debts." "I will make no more presents until my next birthday," he said. "Then I will dispose of everything."

All is in readiness at the Pearsons home for a new tenant. Thomas, the Pearsons butler and general factotum, has been packing things for several weeks.

"As soon as the house is sold I shall go to the sanitarium," said he, "and prepare for the final distribution. For twenty-four years I have lived in the old mansion. Twenty-one of the years I have been giving. I have given something like $6,000,000 to twenty-nine colleges and institutions in twenty-four states. My debts, yes, that is what I call them. You see, I have promised Berea college $100,000 if $400,000 additional is raised.

"That is one debt I must meet April 14. Then there are other conditional debts that I must meet. You know, I investigate every college or institution I aid, and as I am getting pretty well along in years I think I would rather get rid of everything right away.

"When my house is sold and my debts met I shall have been my own executor and shall have closed the estate entirely.

THE FOUNDER OF ESPERANTO

Considerable interest was manifested in the sixth international congress of Esperanto, the universal language, which convened in Washington recently and was in session a week. The delegates numbered 500, coming from 40 nations, and among them was Dr. L. L. Zamenhof of Warsaw, Poland, the author of the new language, whose portrait is here presented.

At some of the meetings the only language spoken was Esperanto and the play "As You Like It" was presented in that tongue.

Esperanto is said to be making considerable progress in the United States and has been taken up by scientists, linguists, teachers, public men and commercial houses. At its last session the Maryland legislature passed a law permitting the study of Esperanto in the public schools. At the congress in Washington the teaching of Esperanto in the public schools of this country and in other lands was discussed and advocated.

Esperanto is not intended to supersede any other tongue, but is meant to be supplementary to other languages, aiding in promoting an interchange of ideals between the peoples of different countries where other forms of oral speech are lacking. It is claimed for it that its adoption would tend to bind nations more closely together and to dispel the doubts and mistrust with which races now regard one another.

Mrs. Wiggin's Idea of London.

During the recent visit of Mrs. Wiggin, the American author, in London, an interviewer called on her. With pencil poised, the interviewer asked:

"And what do you think of London, Mrs. Wiggin?"

"You remind me," answered the author cheerfully, "of the young lady who sat beside Dr. Gibbon at dinner. She turned to him after the soup.

"'Do, dear Dr. Gibbon,' she said, 'tell me about the decline and fall of the Roman empire.'"

Don't Break Down.

Severe strains on the vital organs, like strains on machinery, cause break-downs. You can't over-tax stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels, or nerves without serious danger to yourself. If you are weak or run-down, or under strain of any kind, take Electric Bitters the matchless, tonic medicine. Mrs. J. E. Van de Sande, of Kirkland, Ill., writes: "That I did not break down, while enduring a most severe strain, for three months, is due wholly to Electric Bitters." Use them and enjoy health and strength. Satisfaction positively guaranteed. 50c, at all druggists.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy is to-day the best known medicine in use for the relief and cure of bowel complaints. It cures griping, diarrhoea, dysentery, and should be taken at the first unnatural looseness of the bowels. It is equally valuable for children and adults. It always cures. Sold by all dealers.

Bulletin.

SEPTEMBER AT THE SEASHORE.
REDUCED FARES ACCOUNT G.A.R. ENCAMPMENT

The ocean rolling with its boundless prospect is ever interesting; but at no time is it more enticing than during month of September. The bathing is at its best. The sailing is ideal. The salt sea air is charged with increased invigoration, and there is geniality about it unknown during the torid days of summer.

Atlantic City, Ocean City, Sea Isle City, Avalon, Stone Harbor, Angelesea, Wildwood, Holly Beach, Wildwood Crest, and Cape May are all prepared to entertain with exceptional hospitality all guests who may come. The hotels are less crowded and more comfortable; the service is better and in most instances the rates are lower.

The train service of the Pennsylvania Railroad to all these resorts will be found convenient and comprehensive.

Excursion tickets to Atlantic City will be sold at reduced fares on September 16, 17, 18, 19 and 20, on account of the G. A. R. National Encampment, good returning to reach original starting point not later than September 28. For stop-over privileges and extension of return limit, to October 28, consult Ticket Agents.

SYNOPSIS.

Miss Innes, spinster and guardian of Gertrude and Halsey, established summer headquarters at Sunnyside. Amidst numerous difficulties the servants deserted. As Miss Innes locked up for the night, she was startled by a dark figure on the veranda. She passed a terrible night, which was filled with unseemly noises. In the morning Miss Innes found a strange link cuff button in a clothes hamper. Gertrude and Halsey arrived with Jack Bailey. The house was awakened by a revolver shot. A strange man was found shot to death, in the hall. It proved to be the body of Arnold Armstrong, whose banker father owned the country house. Miss Innes found Halsey's revolver on the lawn. He and Jack Bailey had disappeared. The link cuff button mysteriously disappeared. Detective Jamieson and the coroner arrived. Gertrude revealed that she was engaged to Jack Bailey, with whom she had talked in the billiard room a few moments before the murder. Jamieson told Miss Innes that she was hiding evidence from him. He imprisoned an intruder in an empty room. The prisoner escaped down a laundry chute. It developed that the intruder was probably a woman. Gertrude was suspected, for the intruder left a print of a bare foot. Gertrude returned home with her right ankle sprained. A negro found the other half of what proved to be Jack Bailey's cuff button. Halsey suddenly reappeared. He said he and Bailey had left because they had received a telegram. Gertrude said that she had given Bailey an unloaded revolver, fearing to give him Halsey's loaded weapon. Cashier Bailey of Paul Armstrong's bank, defunct, was arrested, charged with embezzlement.

"In cash?"

"In cash."

"But the man who did it—he would be known?"

"Yes, I tell you both, as sure as I stand here, I believe that Paul Armstrong looted his own bank. I believe he has a million at least, as the result, and that he will never come back. I'm worse than a pauper now. I can't ask Louise to share nothing a year with me, and when I think of this disgrace for her, I'm crazy."

The most ordinary events of life seemed pregnant with possiblities that day, and when Halsey was called to the telephone, I ceased all pretense at eating. When he came back from the telephone his face showed that something had occurred. He waited however, until Thomas left the dining room; then he told us.

"Paul Armstrong is dead," he announced gravely. "He died this morning in California. Whatever he did, he is beyond the law now."

Gertrude turned pale.

"And the only man who could have cleared Jack can never do it!" she said despairingly.

"Also," I replied coldly, "Mr. Armstrong is for ever beyond the power of defending himself. When your Jack comes to me, with some $200,000 in his hands, which is about what you have lost, I shall believe him innocent."

CHAPTER XI.

Halsey Makes a Capture.

It was about half-past eight when we left the dining room, and still engrossed with one subject, the failure of the bank and its attendant evils, Halsey and I went out into the grounds for a stroll. Gertrude followed us shortly. "The light was thickening," to appropriate Shakespeare's description of twilight, and once again the tree-toads and the crickets were making night throb with their tiny life. It was almost oppressively lonely, in spite of its beauty, and I felt a sickening pang of homesickness for my city at night—for the clatter of horses' feet on cemented paving, for the lights, the voices, the sound of children playing. The country after dark oppresses me. The stars, quite eclipsed in the city by the electric lights, here become insistent, assertive. Whether I want to or not, I find myself looking for the few I know by name, and feeling ridiculously new and small by contrast—always an unpleasant sensation.

After Gertrude joined us, we avoided any further mention of the murder. To Halsey, as to me, there was ever present, I am sure, the thought of our conversation of the night before. As we strolled back and forth along the drive, Mr. Jamieson emerged from the shadow of the trees.

"Good evening," he said, managing to include Gertrude in his bow. Gertrude had never been even ordinarily courteous to him, and she nodded coldly. Halsey, however, was more cordial, although we were all constrained enough. He and Gertrude went on together, leaving the detective to walk with me. As soon as they were out of earshot, he turned to me.

"Do you know, Miss Innes," he said, "the deeper I go into this thing, the more strange it seems to me. I am very sorry for Miss Gertrude. It looks as if Bailey, whom she has tried so hard to save, is worse than a rascal; and after her plucky fight for him, it seems hard."

I looked through the dusk to where Gertrude's light dinner dress gleamed among the trees. She had made a plucky fight, poor child. Whatever she might have been driven to do, I could find nothing but a deep sympathy for her. If she had only come to me with the whole truth then!

"Miss Innes," Mr. Jamieson was saying, "in the last three days, have you seen a—any suspicious figures around the grounds? Any—woman?"

"No," I replied. "I have a houseful of maids that will bear watching, one and all. But there has been no strange woman near the house or Liddy would have seen her, you may be sure. She has a telescopic eye."

Mr. Jamieson looked thoughtful.

"It may not amount to anything," he said slowly. "It is difficult to get any perspective on things around here, because every one down in the village is sure he saw the murderer, either before or since the crime. And half of them will stretch a point or two as to facts, to be obliging. But the man who drives the hack down there tells a story that may possibly prove to be important."

"I have heard it, I think. Was it the one the parlor maid brought up yesterday, about a ghost wringing its hands on the roof? Oh perhaps it's the one the milk-boy heard; a tramp washing a dirty shirt, presumably bloody, in the creek below the bridge?"

I could see the gleam of Mr. Jamieson's teeth as he smiled.

"Neither," he said. "But Matthew Geist, which is our friend's name, claims that on Saturday night, at 9:30, a veiled lady—"

"I knew it would be a veiled lady," I broke in.

"A veiled lady," he persisted, "who was apparently young and beautiful, engaged his hack and asked to be driven to Sunnyside. Near the gate, however, she made him stop, in spite of his remonstrances, saying she preferred to walk to the house. She paid him, and he left her there. Now, Miss Innes, you had no such visitor, I believe?"

"None," I said decidedly.

"Geist thought it might be a maid, as you had got a supply that day. But he said her getting out near the gate puzzled him. Anyhow, we have now one veiled lady, who, with the ghostly intruder of Friday night, makes two assets that I hardly know what to do with."

"It is mystifying," I admitted, "although I can think of one possible explanation. The path from the Greenwood club to the village enters the road near the lodge gate. A woman who wished to reach the Country club, unperceived, might choose such a method. There are plenty of women there."

I think this gave him something to ponder, for in a short time he said good night and left. But I myself was far from satisfied. I was determined, however, on one thing. If my suspicions—for I had suspicions—were true, I would make my own investigations, and Mr. Jamieson should learn only what was good for him to know.

We went back to the house, and Gertrude, who was more like herself since her talk with Halsey, sat down at the mahogany desk in the living room to write a letter. Halsey prowled up and down the entire east wing, now in the cardroom, now in the billiard room, and now and then blowing his clouds of tobacco smoke among the pink and gold hangings of the drawing room. After a little I joined him in the billiard room, and together we went over the details of the discovery of the body.

The cardroom was quite dark. Where we sat, in the billiard room, only one of the side brackets was lighted, and we spoke in subdued tones, as the hour and the subject seemed to demand. When I spoke of the figure Liddy and I had seen on the porch through the cardroom window Friday night, Halsey sauntered into the darkened room, and together we stood there, much as Liddy and I had done that other night.

The window was the same grayish rectangle in the blackness as before. A few feet away in the hall was the spot where the body of Arnold Armstrong had been found. I was a bit nervous, and I put my hand on Halsey's sleeve. Suddenly, from the top of the staircase above us came the sound of a cautious footstep. At first I was not sure, but Halsey's attitude told me he had heard and was listening. The step, slow, measured, infinitely cautious, was nearer now. Halsey tried to loosen my fingers, but I was in a paralysis of fright.

The swish of a body against the curving rail, as if for guidance, was plain enough, and now whoever it was had reached the foot of the staircase and had caught a glimpse of our rigid silhouettes against the billiard room doorway. Halsey threw me off then and strode forward.

"Who is it?" he called imperiously, and took a half dozen rapid strides toward the foot of the staircase. Then I heard him mutter something; there was the crash of a falling body, the slam of the outer door, and, for an instant, quiet. I screamed, I think. Then I remember turning on the lights and finding Halsey, white with fury, trying to untangle himself from something warm and fleecy. He had cut his forehead a little on the lowest step of the stairs, and he was rather a ghastly sight. He flung the white object at me, and, jerking open the outer door, raced into the darkness.

Gertrude had come on hearing the noise, and now we stood, staring at each other over—of all things on earth—a white silk and wool blanket, exquisitely fine! It was the most unghostly thing in the world, with its lavender border and its faint scent. Gertrude was the first to speak.

"Somebody—had it?" she asked.

"Yes. Halsey tried to stop whoever it was and fell. Gertrude, that blanket is not mine. I have never seen it before."

She held it up and looked at it; then she went to the door on to the veranda and threw it open. Perhaps 100 feet from the house were two figures, that moved slowly toward us as we looked. When they came within range of the light, I recognized Halsey, and with him Mrs. Watson, the housekeeper.

CHAPTER XII.

One Mystery for Another.

The most commonplace incident takes on a new appearance if the attendant circumstances are unusual. There was no reason on earth why Mrs. Watson should not have carried a blanket down the east wing staircase, if she so desired. But to take a blanket down at 11 o'clock at night, with every precaution as to noise, and, when discovered, to fling it at Halsey and bolt—Halsey's word, and a good one—into the grounds—this made the incident more than significant.

They moved slowly across the lawn and up the steps. Halsey was talking quietly, and Mrs. Watson was looking down and listening. She was a woman of a certain amount of dignity, most efficient, so far as I could see, although Liddy would have found fault if she dared. But just now Mrs. Watson's face was an enigma. She was defiant, I think, under her mask of submission, and she still showed the effect of nervous shock.

"Mrs. Watson," I said severely, "will you be so good as to explain this rather unusual occurrence?"

"I don't think it so unusual, Miss Innes." Her voice was deep and very clear; but it was somewhat tremulous. "I was taking a blanket down to Thomas, who is—not well to-night, and I used this staircase, as being nearer the path to the lodge. When vested, and through an ugly stroy—Mr. Innes called and then rushed at me, I—I was alarmed, and flung the blanket at him."

Halsey was examining the cut on his forehead in a small mirror on the wall. It was not much of an injury, but it had bled freely, and his appearance was rather terrifying.

"Thomas ill?" he said, over his shoulder. "Why, I thought I saw Thomas out there as you made that cyclonic break out of the door and over the porch."

I could see that under pretense of examining his injury he was watching her through the mirror.

"Is this one of the servants' blankets, Mrs. Watson?" I asked, holding up its luxurious folds to the light.

"Everything else is locked away," she replied. Which was true enough, no doubt. I had rented the house without bed furnishings.

"If Thomas is ill," Halsey said, "some member of the family ought to go down to see him. You needn't bother, Mrs. Watson. I will take the blanket."

She drew herself up quickly, as if in protest, but she found nothing to say. She stood smoothing the folds of her dead black dress, her face as white as chalk above it. Then she seemed to make up her mind.

"Very well, Mr. Innes," she said. "Perhaps you would better go. I have done all I could."

And then she turned and went up the circular staircase, moving slowly and with a certain dignity. Below, the three of us stared at one another across the intervening white blanket.

"Upon my word," Halsey broke out, "this place is a walking nightmare. I have the feeling that we three outsiders who have paid our money for the privilege of staying in this spook-factory, are living on the very top of things. We're on the lid, so to speak. Now and then we get a sight of the things inside, but we are not a part of them."

"Do you suppose," Gertrude asked doubtfully, "that she really meant that blanket for Thomas?"

"Thomas was standing beside that magnolia tree," Halsey replied, "when I ran after Mrs. Watson. It's down to this, Aunt Ray. Rosie's basket and Mrs. Watson's blanket can only mean one thing: There is somebody hiding or being hidden in the lodge. It wouldn't surprise me if we hold the key to the whole situation now. Anyhow, I'm going to the lodge to investigate."

Gertrude wanted to go, too, but she looked so shaken that I insisted she should not. I sent for Liddy to help her to bed, and then Halsey and I started for the lodge. The grass was heavy with dew, and, man-like, Halsey chose the shortest way across the lawn. Half way, however, he stopped.

"We'd better go by the drive," he said. "This isn't a lawn; it's a field. Where's the gardener these days?"

"There isn't any," I said meekly. "We have been thankful enough, so far, to have our meals prepared and served and the beds aired. The gardener who belongs here is working at the club."

"Remind me to-morrow to send out a man from town," he said. "I know the very fellow."

I record this scrap of conversation, just as I have tried to put down anything and everything that had a bearing on what followed, because the gardener Halsey sent the next day played an important part in the events of the next few weeks—events that culminated as you know, by stirring the country profoundly. At that time, however, I was busy trying to keep my skirts dry, and paid little or no attention to what seemed then a most trivial remark.

At the lodge everything was quiet. There was a light in the sitting room downstairs, and a faint gleam, as if from a shaded lamp, in one of the upper rooms. Halsey stopped and examined the lodge with calculating eyes.

"I don't know, Aunt Ray," he said dubiously; "this is hardly a woman's affair. If there's a scrap of any kind, you hike for the timber." Which was Halsey's solicitous care for me, put into vernacular.

"I'll stay right here," I said, and crossing the small veranda, now shaded and fragrant with honeysuckle, I hammered the knocker on the door.

Thomas opened the door himself—Thomas, fully dressed and in his customary health. I had the blanket over my arm.

"I brought the blanket, Thomas," I said; "I am sorry you are so ill."

The old man stood staring at me and then at the blanket. His confusion under other circumstances would have been ludicrous.

"What! Not ill?" Halsey said from the step. "Thomas, I'm afraid you've been malingering."

Thomas seemed to have been debating something with himself. Now he stepped out on the porch and closed the door gently behind him.

SELECTION OF FOODS.

Many housekeepers who pride themselves on their knowledge of the cuts of meat and can tell at a glance the hardy old farmyard veteran from the juicy young broiler, fall down completely when choosing fruits and vegetables. Berries which looked well in the market prove flat, stale and unprofitable. Melons and cucumbers outwardly attractive were only skin deep in good looks. Oranges and grapefruit are frequently overripe and peaches green. The wise selection of fruit is not learned in a day nor with one lesson. For the beginner there are a few points, which if observed will make the chances better of getting what one pays for and teach one how to tell the good from the bad.

The two chief tests are weight and fgararnce. Ripe fruit has a fresh, sweet odor which is easily recognized. Fragrance is the best test to give to berries, as those without that delicate aroma should be regarded with suspicion. This is also true of lemons, oranges, peaches, pears, and especially of cantelopes.

When buying oranges, grapefruit and melons, weight is the important item; if light in weight, beware of them, they will either be pithy or unripe. If melons are spongy to the touch they are either unripe or stale. Cucumbers should never be purchased if spongy.

In selecting muskmelons the sweetest ones have a rough rind. The smooth streaks which divide the fruit into sections should be yellowish.

WE SCATTER seeds with careless hand,
And dream we ne'er shall see them more;
But for a thousand years their fruit appears
In weeds that mar the land, or healthful store."

EMERGENCY SALAD.

The ingredients for a salad are usually at hand, the vegetables left from dinner; if they have been served with a sauce, this can be washed off before putting away. Remnants of fruit that are not enough to serve as a fruit course make a delicious salad. Fruit is nice served with a heavy sirup, a French dressing or a mayonnaise. When serving a French dressing on fruit it is well to use lemon instead of vinegar, and whipped cream may be added just before serving.

Cold cooked string beans make a most satisfying salad with a little onion and a French dressing, all heaped daintily on crisp leaves of lettuce. For a beet salad cut enough cold cooked beets into dice to make three cupfuls, put into a salad bowl, add five tablespoonfuls of olive oil, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar, a teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of red pepper. Arrange on a bed of lettuce on a cold dish; pour the dressing over it and serve.

Celery and hard cooked eggs with a dressing make a wholesome salad.

Tips for the Worker.

Never get careless about your work. Be cheerful over your work; nobody wants to hear of aches and pains.

Politeness costs little and brings in splendid returns.

Don't think you are indespensable. Notice the hole made in a pail of water when you draw out your finger? So will our places be filled when we go.

Be dependable; there is no quality so worth cultivation and often lacking in otherwise good people.

Cultivate a keen sense of humor it lightens many a burden and makes easy many rough roads.

Egg Cutlets, Cream Sauce.

Make a thick sauce with two tablespoonfuls of butter, three tablespoonfuls of flour, one and a half cupfuls of milk. Cook until thick and well done. Have ready six hard cooked eggs coarsely chopped with a silver knife. To the sauce add a half teaspoonful of onion juice, a tablespoonful of chopped parsley and the eggs, then set aside to cool. Flour the hands, and mold in small cutlets; dip in egg and crumbs and fry in deep fat. Serve with:

Cucumber Salad.

Select even-sized cucumbers and cut a thick slice from each lengthwise without peeling them, scoop out the seeds and pulp and put aside; peel one or two tomatoes and cut up, drain off the juice and fill the cucumber shells with the red and white bits, lay each on a lettuce leaf, pour over a French dressing and serve very cold.

Stewed Bermuda Onions.

Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan and lay in six peeled Bermuda onions. Sprinkle with two teaspoonfuls each of salt and sugar. Cover with a cupful of stock and simmer until tender, adding boiling water as needed. Serve with the sauce poured around the onions.

Her Little Brother—Well, you are. I heard her tell pop she was goin' ter land you tonight.

When Servants Were Slaves.

It hasn't been so many years since servants were practically slaves; they were bound out for a term of years and never could hope to better their conditions. The world is advancing, however, and now servants, especially those who do washing and housecleaning, are better treated. Easy Task laundry soap, that does half the work itself, and which cleans pots and pans and painted work like magic, is responsible for much of this emancipation. Only 5 cents a cake, too.

Real Modesty.

"An actor should be modest, and most actors are," said James K. Hackett at a luncheon in Pittsburg. "But I know a young actor who, at the beginning of his career, carried modesty almost too far.

"This young man inserted in all the dramatic papers a want advertisement that said:

"'Engagement wanted—small part such as dead body or outside shouts preferred.'"

Faults in American Character.

In an address on botanical education in America, Prof. W. F. Ganong remarks that "disregard of particulars and a tendency to easy generalities are fundamental faults in American character," and he insists upon the necessity of laboratory and experimental work in all scientific study. Books "ease the wits," but independent observation is the source of sound knowledge in science.

In the Suburb.

Ostrich Feathers

There seems to be something irresistibly attractive to women in the fluffy, nodding plumes of the ostrich, and if this great bird could not be bred on ostrich farms his race would become extinct. Like many another wearer of fine plumage, the goddess of fashion would pursue him to the death.

Although good ostrich plumes are as costly as ever, they are in wider demand than in all the history of millinery. Everyone wants plumes, and other ostrich feathers, in all the varied beautiful mountings which the artists make them up.

There is a wonderful variety to choose from. The introduction of "willow" plumes, that is those having the flues lengthened by tying on extra pieces, has brought out all sorts of color combinations and plumes of long sweeping fibers. They are very beautiful but not as practical as the unpieced plumes. In buying high priced ostrich feathers the French plumes with long, slightly curled flues are by far the best investment. They can be cleaned and recurled at a comparatively small outlay and may be bought on a guarantee from the dealer that they will stand wear. Moisture doesn't do them any permanent harm. On the other hand the willow plume cannot be guaranteed to wear. Those in black are especially fragile, something in the dye causes them to come untied or to break off when the air is damp. The white and light colors wear better than black.

When one does not need to think of economy there are beautiful effects to be wrought out by using plumes with pieced flues, which are well worth the price.

Three fall hats are illustrated here showing the simplicity and richness of ostrich used for trimming. They are mounted in groups of three or more toward the back of the hat as a rule. Nothing else is needed on the shape and the addition of a band and bow about the crown is a matter of choice, for a shape bearing a full tuft of plumes is amply trimmed.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

NEW TOUCH IN JEWELRY

Quaint Idea That Has Only Recently Made Its Appearance, and Is Welcomed.

Jewelry, at any rate, in our loose acceptance of the term, for no stones are visible in this pretty fancy. I have spoken of the gold lace pins crocheted with lace. Now far-seeing manufacturers have brought out wooden ornaments in all manner of sorts and shapes—collar pins, hat pins, belt buckles, cuff links, slipper buckles—all to be covered with this crocheted lace. One may have a whole set of them for an afternoon's work, and they make the daintiest of gifts for brides and "next Christmasers."

If crocheting is not in your line, fine lace can be darned around these wooden foundations, of dotted or figured net may be used instead. Whatever material is used, they are as quaint and pretty as the lace-covered gold pins, which is saying a great deal.—Exchange.

CHIC TUSSOR FROCK

This illustration shows a simple but good looking frock for a young girl made from Tussock silk and trimmed with spotted satin foulard and Guipure collar. The belt of suede matches the ground of trimming.

PRETTY FANCY OF FASHION

Jeweled Laces Are Marvelously Beautiful, Though Only for Those With Long Purses.

The very newest thing in jewelry is the reproduction of old and priceless laces in tiny pearls and diamonds mounted upon gunmetal, platinum or diamond net. The exact pattern of the lace is copied, and the whole is formed into a jabot or a lace fall for the collar. Sometimes there is a bow above, composed of some colored stones—emeralds or amethysts or rubies—set in solid.

This new and wonderful work has revolutionized the art of the jeweler, since the workmanship has become quite as valuable as the stones themselves. These laces of jewels are, of course, ruinously expensive, but they are such marvels of beauty that a woman might well dispense with all other ornament for the sake of possessing one of them.

The Swan-Like Throat.

This is to be a great season for collarless frocks.

But one pretty neck is often harder to acquire than the dozens of chemisettes we may have done away with.

A good neck depends much upon the general health, but considerable may be done that is of direct benefit.

Many an otherwise lovely neck is ruined by an awkward poise of the head. The best cure for this is to sit or walk each day with a book on the head. Do not stiffen the muscles to hold this weight. Manage it by balancing.

Thinness of the neck should be an easy fault to overcome.

Plenty of sleep and an abundance of milk, with raw eggs beaten up in it, should help considerably.

The neck should be washed well every night with warm water, followed by a cold spray and massaged afterward with a cold cream.

Low-Cut Neck Edging.

A ready-made dress of dark blue lawn seen recently had at the round Dutch neck a tiny piping formed from the edge of a fine hemstitched handkerchief. The effect was cool and dainty, "and the handkerchief had paint on it, anyway," said the bright originator.

Bracelets Over Gloves.

Few women seem to realize that bracelets over gloves are almost or quite as bad as rings over gloves. If one wears a bracelet with long gloves at all, it should be worn under them; but, if possible, it should not be worn.

IMPROVED AND ADEQUATE VENTILATION FOR STABLE

The usual method of stable ventilation is to place flues with outlets terminating in a shaft through the roof and surmounted by a plain cupola or cover with a cap a foot or so above the opening. The idea in the latter case is that the wind will blow between the cap and the top of the shaft as shown at B in the illustration herewith, says American Agriculturist. This method tends to increase the flow of vitiated air from the stable and thus aid the ventilation, pure air coming in from inlet flues placed at somewhat remote points from the outlets.

Whether this method is fully satisfactory is not certain, for at times when the wind is gusty the vitiated air is forced back into the stable instead of being drawn out, and often snow and sleet are drawn down the shaft. To overcome the uncertain working of this kind of shaft, as well as other disadvantages of the plain cupola, the style of cupola shown at C with sides opening in the direction of the prevailing winds and covered with doors hinged at the top but swinging freely, has been used with success. When there is no wind the doors hang so that the cupola is partly open on each side, but as shown in the illustration, when the wind blows from the right, the door on that side is closed by the force of the wind. The other side, however, is open and there is always a chance for the stable air to pass out and no chance for rain or snow to blow down the shaft. If desired, doors can be placed on all four sides of the cupola.

Though this arrangement is satisfactory so far as removing outdoor influences from the interior system of ventilation is concerned, the principal point is the retention of wind force to assist in ventilation when only the animal heat in the stable is available to produce ventilation. The assistance of the wind is of great service and should be taken advantage of as much as possible. A method of securing this advantage is shown in the large picture herewith. As the ventilator shaft terminates in a square, rather high cupola twice the size of the shaft. Openings of reasonable size are made opposite each other in the walls of this cupola and in line with the prevailing winds, as shown at a. Doors are made to fit these openings, connected as shown at b and hung from a crosspiece below the roof of the cupola. Near the bottom of the cupola are two or three holes about 2 inches in diameter depending on the size of the cupola. The ventilator shaft as shown at c extends above these openings but terminates slightly below the larger ventilator openings.

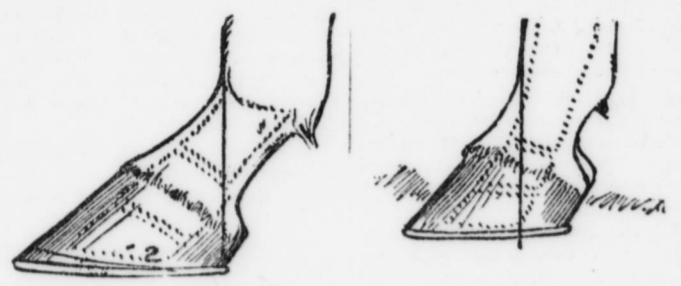
Features of Stable Construction.

PERFECTING HOOF OF HORSE



A foot with too much growth on fore part of hoof, which is apt to cause albow hitting, is shown in the illustration. The remedy is to pare off as indicated by line and fit a leather pad under rear part of hoof.

A foot of correct proportions is shown in the second illustration. A line drawn from front part of leg strikes a little distance behind the center. The bones are at the proper angle affording strength and free action in traveling.

CHANGE SHEEP PASTURE OFTEN

Breeders Must Practice Method of Dividing Into Small Lots if Ewes and Lambs Kept Healthy.

(By W. M. KELLEY.)

The more I study the sheep business and the more carefully I note the results of my own experience and observation, the more I am coming to appreciate the frequent change of pastures for the ewes and lambs. It costs money to change our system of pasturing sheep and divide our pastures up into small lots, but we must practise this method if we succeed in in keeping our sheep and lambs free from stomach worms.

We know that these worms come from the sheep to the lambs through the grass that is eaten. We know that it takes a certain time for the germs when dropped on the grass to develop enough to get to the lambs.

That time is estimated to be from eight to 12 days. We know that the lambs are born free from parasites. We know that it is possible to keep the mothers quite free from parasites before the lambs are dropped.

By putting what facts we know together we can readily see that if we change pastures frequently, say every eight to 12 days, we will lessen the danger of the lambs becoming infected with these germs through the grass that they consume. Some of the highest authorities advise allowing the lambs to run ahead of the ewes and moving the ewes one pasture ahead each week, thus the ewes and lambs are changed every week.

Pasteurizing Milk.

To pasteurize milk or cream is simply to heat the same to about 160 degrees, then rapidly cook the liquid. By this process the lactic germs or germs which cause milk to sour are destroyed, but the germs which cause milk to become putrid are not destroyed. Experts claim the danger is that dirty milk may be pasteurized, hence the operation may be dangerous or, at least, disappointing from the reason that one cannot tell just when putrifaction may take place. The latter cannot be detected until it reaches an advanced age, as pasteurized milk or cream may never grow sour, yet may contain germs fraught with danger. Many physicians also claim that pasteurization reduces the digestibility of the milk or cream.

Currants and Gooseberries.

A. Hittinger is an extensive grower of currants and gooseberries. He lives five miles from Boston. Every plant is propagated on the farm. He has a beautiful nursery of currants, the plants being very thrifty and vigorous. Both of these fruits root readily from hardwood cuttings. They should be cut in the fall, stored in a moist cellar or buried and planted as soon as the ground can be prepared in the spring.

TERRIBLE CASE OF GRAVEL

Baker City, Ore., Man Suffered 25 Years.

Charles Kurz, 1618 Center St., Baker City, Ore., says: "For 25 years I suffered agony from gravel. So intense was the pain when the stones were passing, that I had to lie on my back and brace my feet, often being forced to scream. On one occasion two stones became lodged and I could not pass the urine for two days. I spent hundreds of dollars without relief. At last I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. They are the only remedy that wards off these attacks."

Remember the name—Doan's. For sale by all dealers. 50 cents a box.

Tuberculosis in the Prisons.

The fact that 100,000 prisoners are discharged from the jails and prisons of the country annually, and that from 10 to 15 per cent. of them have tuberculosis, makes the problem of providing special places for their treatment while they are confined a serious one. So important is the problem that the Prison association of New York in cooperation with the State Charities Aid association, is preparing to inaugurate a special campaign for the prevention of tuberculosis in the penal institutions of the state, and will seek to enlist the co-operation of all prison physicians and anti-tuberculosis societies in this work.

Women Save Money.

Women are natural money-savers, no matter how much is said about what they spend for dresses and hats. They always know how to make a dollar go the farthest. That's why thoughtful women discover that by using Easy Task soap in their laundry work they save fuel and time and trouble and health and more than that, they save the clothes that are washed. Easy Task has no rosin in it to stay in the clothes and hold the dirt with it and rot the fabric.

WESTERN CANADA'S 1910 CROPS

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Wheat Yield in Many Districts Will Be From 25 to 35 Bushels Per Acre

Land sales and homestead entries increasing. No cessation in numbers going from United States. Wonderful opportunities remain for those who intend making Canada their home. New districts being opened up for settlement. Many farmers will net, this year, $10 to $15 per acre from their wheat crop. All the advantages of old settled countries are there. Good schools, churches, splendid markets, excellent railway facilities. See the grain exhibit at the different State and some of the County fairs.

Letters similar to the following are received every day, testifying to satisfactory conditions; other districts are as favorably spoken of:

THEY SENT FOR THEIR SON.

Maidstone, Sask., Canada, Aug. 8th, 1910.

"My parents came here from Cedar Falls, Iowa, four years ago, and were so well pleased with this country they sent to Coeur d'Alene for me. I have taken up a homestead near them, and am perfectly satisfied to stop here." Leonard Douglas.

WANTS SETTLER'S RATE FOR HIS STOCK.

Stettler, Alberta, July 31st, 1910.

"Well I got up here from Forest City, Iowa, last Spring in good shape with the stock and everything. Now, I have got two boys back in Iowa yet, and I am going back there now soon to get them and another car up here this fall. What I would like to know is, if there is any chance to get a cheap rate back again, and when we return to Canada I will call at your office for our certificates."

Yours truly, H. A. Wik.

WILL MAKE HIS HOME IN CANADA.

Brainerd, Minn., Aug. 1st, 1910.

"I am going to Canada a week from today and intend to make my home there. My husband has been there six weeks and is well pleased with the country, so he wants me to come as soon as possible. He died on a claim near Landis, Sask., and by his description of it it must be a pretty place.

My brother-in-law, Mr. Frank J. Zimmer, lives there and it was through him that we decided to locate in Canada." Yours truly, Mrs. Richard Henry Ebinger.

TAKES HIS BROTHER-IN-LAW'S WORD FOR IT.

Taylors Falls, Minn., Aug. 7, 1910.

"I shall go to Camrose this Fall with my cattle and household goods. I got a poor crop here this year and my brother-in-law, Axel Nordstrom in Camrose, wants me to come there. He formerly lived in Wilton, North Dakota. I am going to buy or take homestead when I get there, but I do not want to travel two times there, for I take my brother-in-law's word about the country, and want to get your low rate." Yours truly, Peter A. Nelson.

WANTS TO RETURN TO CANAD

Vesta, Minn., July 24th, 1910

"I went to Canada nine years ago and took up a quarter section of railroad land and a homestead, but my boys have never taken up any land yet. I still hold the railroad land. I had to come back to the states on account of my health. Please let me know at once if I can get the cheap rates to Pomeka, Alberta. Yours truly, Geo. Paskewitz, Vesta, Minn.
